We, the members of the class of 1969, in re-living our high school days, recall particularly one of the Woburn High School Staff. It has been this person's task to enable each student to realize his maximum academic potential and to assure that the proper behavior of maturing young adults be maintained within our school. Difficult though this task may seem, this man has succeeded in his role as student adviser and disciplinarian, while gaining the respect and admiration of the student body as a trusting friend and generous human being.

His varied contacts with high school students have enabled him to better understand certain qualities necessary for the development of a well-rounded and well-disciplined student. As a teacher, he has recognized the need for the training of the mind and the acquisition of knowledge in preparing the student for adjustment to society and occupational pursuit after graduation. As a former head coach of successful football teams, he has been able to appreciate the need for physical development, positive thinking, self-discipline, and spirited competition as plus factors in the attainment of one's goals. In his role as an administrator, this man has shown his ability to communicate purposefully with teacher, parent, and student, thus maintaining a degree of harmony and good will in our community.

It is this man's distinction to be well-acquainted with many students on a most informal level. His understanding of and his willingness to advise such students have revealed his compassion as well as his competency as a leader and an educator.

In future days, as we recall the past and the many events and individuals who have best influenced our lives, we are certain to count you among them . . .

Superintendent's Message to the Class of '69

These are happy days. These are troubled days. They are happy because you have reached a first milestone, culminating in these hectic, carefree days of graduation from Woburn High School. Happy, because you can share your success with friends, parents and teachers. Happy, because you have youth and ambition. They are happy too, because you have a clean sheet before you on which to write the fulfillment of your dreams.

Then too, these are troubled, turbulent days. Your generation has been called upon to witness a great world upheaval. Dissention, riots, and cold wars saturate the news media. Three high ranking men, all proponents of peace, have been shot down by assassins' bullets. It is small wonder that the youth of today is crying out for a change of order.

It is at this point, however, that youth must arrest its drive to rush in unthinkingly. That which is good must be kept; the bad must be erased. Youth must reflect upon the past and the principles upon which our country has grown. Are those principles set forth by our founding fathers unworkable today? Upon study of our Constitution and Bill of Rights one can see that they closely relate to the teachings of One who gave His life for Man two thousand years ago. The trouble then must lie in Man himself—his greed, his selfishness, his bigotry.

It is my sincere belief that you, the youth of today, will change this world; that you will change it by casting out those baser instincts which have brought the world to its present condition. To paraphrase a now famous quotation "Ask not what I can get for myself. Rather ask what can I give to others." As a journey of a thousand miles starts with a single step, so the changing of the world starts with the individual.

My wish for you today is that each of you will use his talents, whether great or small, to the service of others; that he will reject the chicanery of those who have brought the world to its present condition, and that he will make this world a little better place because he has lived in it. May God bless each of you.

Principal's Message

To the Members of the Class of 1969:

In a period of confrontation, conflict, and deep concern in our national life at all levels, it has become fashionable for many statesmen, educators, and public leaders to decry the moral values and basic philosophy of our youth. The failure of many in adult life to understand the impatience of youth, its concern with social problems, and its desire to change the status quo has resulted in the so-called "generation gap."

Yet history shows it was always so.

"Our youth now have luxury; they have bad manners, contempt for authority; they show disrespect for elders and love chatter in place of exercise. Children are now tyrants, not the servants of the household. They contradict their parents, chatter before company, gobble up their food and tyrannize their teachers."

In truth, these words were uttered by Socrates, the great Greek philosopher, in the fifth century B.C., yet how many times have we heard them, in paraphrase, in our own day—profoundly spoken as though the newest generation was different in its impression on its elders from all previous generations of mankind!

What is different about the "now" generation on the eve of Graduation in 1969 is its drive, preparation, and intelligence. It is to this best educated class in the long history of the Woburn Senior High School—the Class of 1969—that I am privileged to extend sincere best wishes for all possible future happiness and success.

May its strong social convictions be reflected in a better society with "Peace on earth; good will to all men."

Sincerely,

Henry D. Blake

Control Stations Efficient

Three areas which are vital to the efficient functioning of the school are the office communications center, the Health Suite and the office of the Dean of Girls. Office duties include arranging appointments, compiling "The Reflector" and disseminating information throughout the school. The nurses in the Health Suite provide for the general physical well-being of both students and teachers. Under the competent direction of Miss Salmon, Dean of Girls, female students find accurate and fair decisions regarding academic areas, extracurricular activities, and the mode of dress.

Guidance Seeks Individual Self-Appraisal

The Guidance Department believes that every student is capable of being directed to maximum achievement through a knowledge of his own worth and capabilities and a mature sense of responsibility. The department is constantly striving to assist each student to reach his maximum scholastic potential and to aid him in finding the most suitable place for his creative efforts. Guidance, toward self appraisal, is the best method of helping the student realize his own potential.

A student may request an interview with his counselor whenever the need or desire arises. Discussions with parents concerning the educational opportunities for their sons and daughters are regarded as most essential. Parents who are unable, or who find it difficult to confer during regular school hours, may do so on Monday evenings, as the Guidance Office is open, by appointment, every week at this time. Guidance seeks to help the individual help himself and assists each student in making a wise choice for his benefit and the benefit of society.

Students discuss future.

Leadership — Responsibility — Pride

The Naval Science Department is a recent addition to the many courses of study offered to the young men of Woburn High School.

The Naval Junior Reserve Officers' Training Corps Program has been established through an Act of Congress and has been approved by the Secretary of the Navy. The purpose of the Program is to develop leaders with a strong sense of responsibility, pride, and self-reliance.

The Naval Cadets meet twice weekly in regular classroom study. They explore such subjects as Naval Seapower, Naval Tradition, Oceanography, and other extremely interesting topics. On a previously specified day, the Naval Cadets will assemble on the parade grounds and will be instructed in the basics of close order drill and the manual of arms.

Art Department Meets Demands and Expectations of the Students

Expanded by the addition of Miss Pat Conant at the high school and by the co-ordination of the Senior and Junior High Schools to insure an orderly progression of art experiences for those students involved in the art program, the Art Department continues to grow and meet the demands and expectations of the art (interested) and art oriented students of Woburn.

Under the direction of Mr. Frank Newark and Mr. Ted Johnson, creative students are involved in such diversified crafts as creative design, ceramics, batik, enameling, and architecture. Also included in the course is painting, experimenting with pen and ink, charcoal, tempra, oils, and water colors.

Rotational Unit of Work Systematized

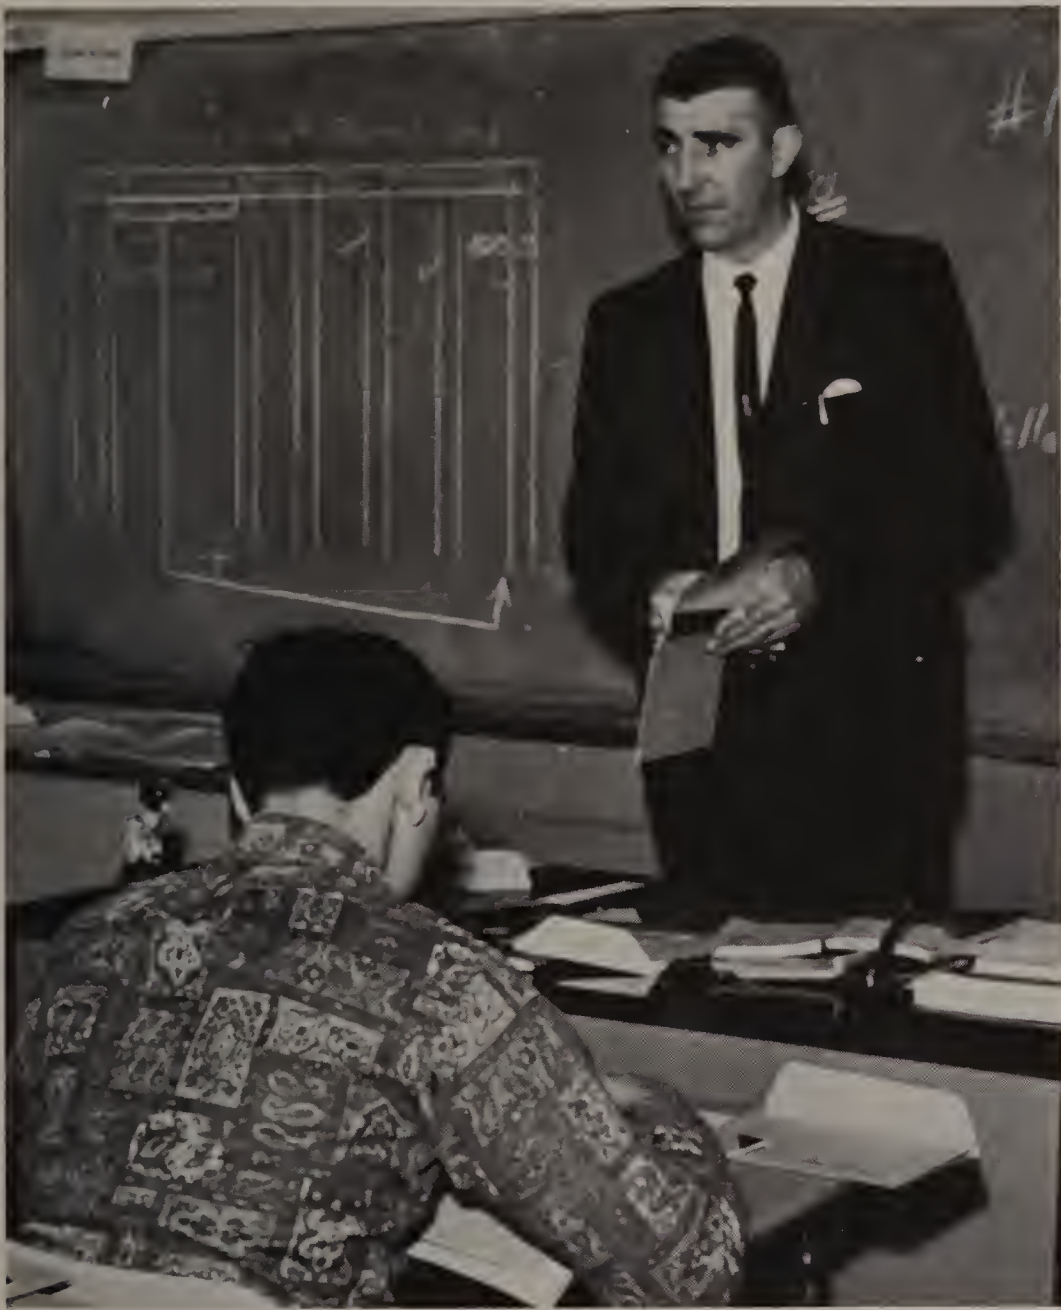

The Business Ed. Department has created a new pupil station to which each senior will rotate for a two-week's unit of work as a culmination of his vocational course. The work area includes an office-style desk and chair with such equipment as an electric typewriter, electric stapler, typical business papers, etc. While working at this desk, the pupil assumes the role of Office Manager and plans his time to complete routine tasks while coordinating special assignments. He assimilates a variety of duties and executes a typical daily office routine under the supervising teacher.

Science Spurs Intellectual Investigation

The Science Department at Woburn High School, a combination of the Physical Science Department and the Biological Science Department, is well equipped to satisfy the intellectual needs of students. The number of advances in laboratory techniques and the modification of equipment have necessitated the installation of Advanced Placement courses in Chemistry and Biology. There is also a possibility for the addition of an Advanced Placement course in Physics for next year.

For the student who wishes to pursue a discipline that lies outside the realm of class study and laboratory work, there is the annual Science Fair. Participation in this event enables the student to demonstrate his knowledge of a particular subject, in which he is interested.

This combination of classroom study, laboratory, work, and investigation of interests, creates a greater freedom and interest for the study of the sciences, because the student can study scientific phenomena through contact with his classmates and with the world of nature.

Students Reflect Excellence in Mathematics

All students, whether preparing for a business career, college or homemaking, have one course in common—mathematics. The goal of the Math Department, under the direction of Miss Virginia Hall, is to introduce forms of mathematics that will be meaningful and useful to students after graduation.

Well-trained teachers aware of what's happening in a rapidly changing field, the latest in textbooks and equipment, and an expanding math library contribute to a math department. An active Math Club, and a successful Team show that the students are taking full advantage of the math training. The Math Team has competed with teams from surrounding communities and has won distinction in many meets. Several Woburn High students have been awarded top prizes and individual honors, a fine tribute to the excellence of the Department and its instructors.

Communication Method Stressed in English

The objective of the English Department is to engender the immediate growth of the student's potential communicative powers. The study of English is intended to equip the student with tools and disciplines that will make possible continued, long range self-development in reading, speaking, and writing.

The program of instruction is unified and coherent, sequential and cumulative encompassing the meaning in the world of things, peoples, and ideas and the written language as the tool for expressing that meaning. The detailed program of instruction that evolves from this principle pulls together the diverse contributions made towards the subject of English by grammar and logic, by semantics and linguistics.

Linguistic and Cultural Values Advanced in Foreign Languages

The programs of the Foreign Language Department are designed to help students better understand other cultures and someday communicate with these people. The wide variety of language offerings and the advanced courses offer students an excellent opportunity to attain this communication and understanding. Through the use of an audio-lingual approach, the beginning years of the language programs stress basic conversational ability and a knowledge of grammar; they also provide a basis for appreciation of more advanced work. In the upper levels of foreign language learning, students continue to develop language skills, become more familiar with the literature and civilization of the country, and learn to discuss a wide range of topics. Additional information about the art, music and culture of the countries is provided by each of the language clubs.

Innovation and Experimentation

The major function of the social studies department is to make of each young person an intelligent, functioning citizen of a free democratic society. The enlightened citizen and the trained public servant must be sensitive to human relations in all of their manifestations and to the ways in which they can be improved. As a result of funds being made available under Title III for the purchase of supplementary materials and equipment, the department is able to present a new rationale for social studies that allows innovations and experimentation without undermining the integrity of history, geography, and the social science disciplines. One of the most recent and exciting teaching techniques is the use of the Inter-Nation Simulation, whereby the student, through the technique of role-playing, gains an appreciation of the complexities governing the behavior of nations.

Three New Services Offered

This year the library offers three new services to students and faculty: (1) New York Times on microfilm—index available; (2) Listening area for recordings (phonograph and ear phones available); (3) Viewing area for filmstrips. In regard to using the library, more freedom, yet more responsibility, is given to the student for now each student can sign up at the library to use the library at whatever time he wishes. For the convenience of students, this year "a book returning station," has been set up between hallways 7 and 8.

Physical training stresses muscle development and coordination.

Leisure Time Necessitates Physical Education

The economic and social changes of the past sixty years have increased the importance and need for physical education. More leisure time, greater economic prosperity, wider social horizons, and increasing dependence on machines have made the need for physical education greater than ever before.

Sixty years ago, sports such as golf and tennis were for the very rich or the very young. Today there is both time and money for the enjoyment of these activities. However, athletic skills, which help people adjust successfully to increased leisure time, must be developed at an early age, when learning is in the nature of things. The school physical education program provides the basic training necessary for adult physical hobbies, which may be enjoyed alone or with others.

Responsibility Met Through Challenges

Because of the many challenges each girl may encounter after graduation, the Home Economics Department stresses both individuality and responsibility.

One aim of this department is to help each girl develop herself through an understanding of herself and members of her family. This is achieved through units in personal development, psychology and color and design.

The other major purpose is to provide instruction in such basic homemaking skills as child care, nutrition, and clothing construction. Preparing well-balanced and attractive meals and hostessing with a flair are only a few of the end results developed in the foods area.

An added feature is the High Teen Fashion Club which provides members with the opportunity of hearing speakers directly connected with the fashion world.

By catering to the creativity of each girl, the Home Economics Department has enjoyed increased student enrollment yearly and we maintain a high degree of popularity.

Insight Offered Into Industrial Society

The Industrial Arts Program at Woburn High School is a phase of general education. It offers students an insight into our industrial society at various levels through activity-type classroom experience. The subject areas offer broad aspects involving study, planning, organization, construction, servicing, experimentation, automotives, drawing, graphic arts, metal working, wood working, and home maintenance. Since technology and industry continuously influence our lives, the Industrial Arts courses emphasize problem-solving experiences which assist students in becoming alert contributors and consumers.

Numerous activities take place in shops.

Diverse Opportunities Presented by Music Department

Opportunities are presented for the student to participate in many full-time musical courses or part-time musical electives. Instruction in the basics of music are supplemented by exposure to the works of the masters in an attempt to help the student refine his taste for music.

By taking part in the programs offered by the music department a student will not only learn but also gain much personal satisfaction. The interested student by participating in the band or the various choral groups receives the knowledge of the instructor along with cultivating his many talents.

Magic Moments Mystical Success

"Magic Moments" were created on Friday evening, May 10, 1968 when the Class of '69 celebrated its first formal dance. The imagination and creativity of the Junior Dance Committee provided for a truly exquisite setting.

Ornate arrangements of pastel turquoise and buttercup yellow flowers crowded the quaint flower shops, one of which served as a dispenser for refreshments. The flower filled balloon, the large fountain with flowing water, the blossoming trees, and the silhouette of a girl and a boy against a heart all added to the mystical atmosphere.

As the evening went by, everyone participated in the Grand March and in the informal receiving line. Star shaped charms, which characterized the magical atmosphere, were then presented to each girl.

As the evening came to a close, the pleasure and enchantment of the members of the class were evident. The Junior Prom of the Class of '69 truly left nothing to be desired. Our class will long remember the many "Magic Moments" shared that evening.

Closely Contested Elections

Posters, campaign speeches and nomination papers set the scene of the 1968-69 class elections. After assemblies and days of hectic vote—getting the final results were announced throughout the school. This year the results of several contests were determined by the closest of margins.

Students learn a great deal about the Democratic process and how it works from these elections. Hopefully in future years, participation will aid the student in exercising his franchise. To the winners “best wishes” were extended and to the losers “congratulations” were announced on playing a fair game.

Rally Spurs Team

On the Friday evening prior to "The Game" the Student Council traditionally holds its booster dance. This year, buoyed by the comments of Coaches Hill and Morelli, the antics of the boys? on the squad, and the raucous beat of a rock and roll band the student body proved to be a loud, faithful, and confident supporter of the team. The spirit and enthusiasm of the huge crowd was an additional boost as the Woburn eleven gathered strength from the students and displayed it the following Thursday.

Superstition Pales in Glow of Christmas

Surrounded by ambitious and imaginative scenes depicting an old-fashioned Christmas in the country, festive holiday revelers greeted the Christmas season and danced away the evening of Friday, December 13, 1968.

Met at the door by a five-foot oscillating Santa Claus, couples passed through the receiving line and received their mementos from the Dance Committee. Leonard Spicer and Santa Claus and helpers provided songs and laughter during intermission. The climax came with the lighting of the class Christmas tree at 10:30, yet many danced until curfew tolled, indicating the dancers pleasure with the efforts of the Dance Committee.

This second dance was a social success and indicated that in future years the Naval Ball will be one of the highlights of the social calendar.

Student Council Varies Program

Participating in more activities than ever before, the Student Council provided its members with many opportunities to participate in and observe the varied functions in a society. Council members conducted the class elections and aided municipal officials at the polls during the city elections.

Social functions of the Council included sponsorship of the Thanksgiving Booster Dance, where a rock and roll band performed. In addition, the Council sponsored the eagerly awaited Mother-Daughter Banquet held in March.

Demonstrating their interest in local politics, council members regularly attended School Committee meetings. In the high school, the council enacted newer laws governing student life, including an activities point program and a uniform set of election rules.

Many Facets of Health Care Explored

To insure that each girl interested in nursing and related areas was aware of the many opportunities in the health field, the Future Nurses Club held monthly meetings where speakers presented information on admission requirements and application procedures for nursing, x-ray, and laboratory schools.

To give an indication of the satisfaction derived from giving service to others, club members made stuffed animals for children and filled Christmas stockings for the elderly. During the holiday season, former members returned for a social, where they related their experiences and problems in adjusting to added schooling and work experiences.

Classics Club Studies the Masters

"Classical" denotes excellence of the highest degree in the fields of literature and art. It is the aim of the Classics Club to introduce its members to these various works. This had been carried out by lectures and field trips. This year the club visited various museums and also viewed a film.

Numerous Trips Provide Cultural Enrichment for the Art Guild

The Art Guild, under the direction of Mr. Frank Newark and Mr. Theodore Johnson, enabled students to enrich their knowledge and appreciation of art by visiting museums and exhibits throughout the year. The Guild took its annual trip to the De-Cordova Museum in Lincoln, Mass. Trips to other museums were made whenever possible. This year, as in years past, members of the Guild helped to design and paint the scenery for the Three-One-Act-Plays. The last project of the year was the presentation of the Annual Spring Art Exhibition, in which the students displayed their artistic talents to an appreciative and enthusiastic public.

An Active Year for the Choraleers

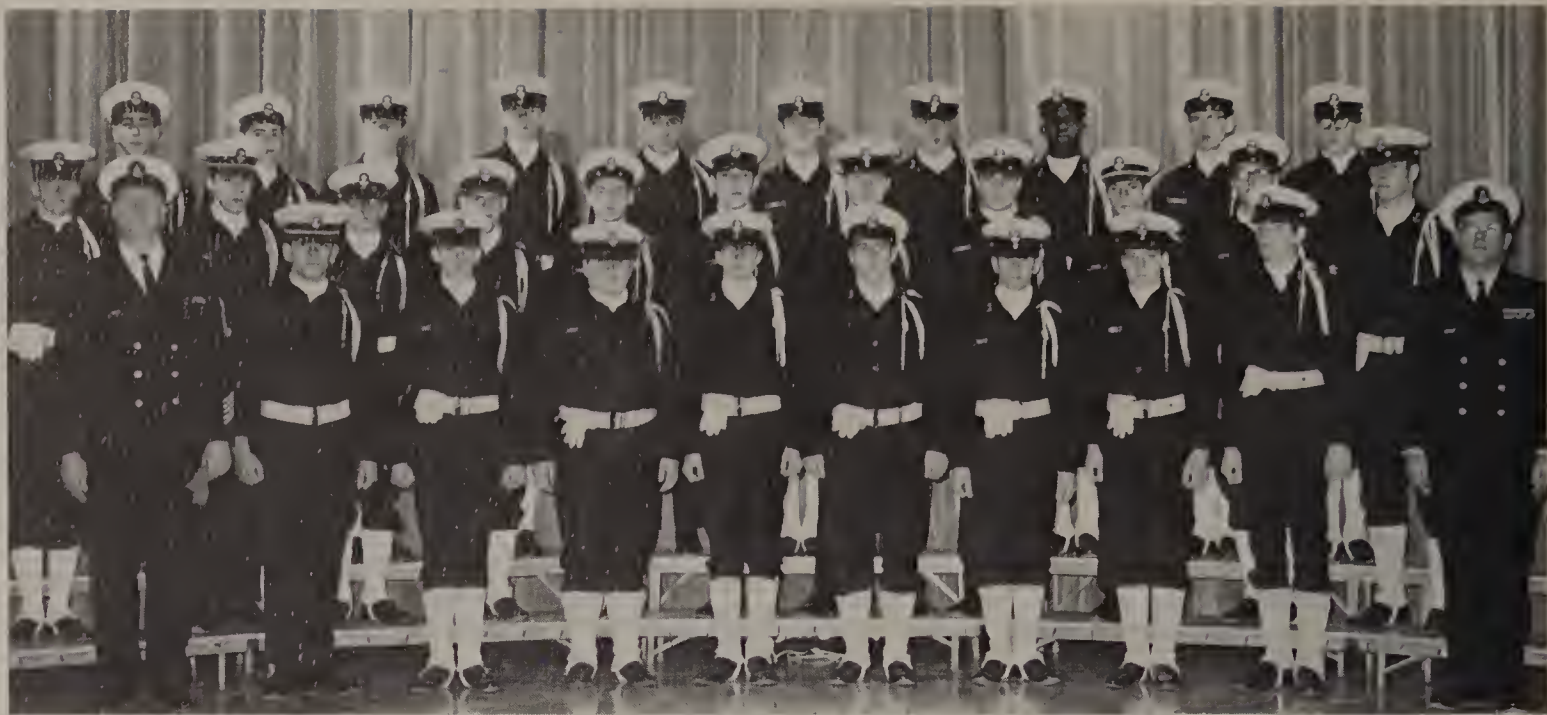

The Choraleers, directed this year by Mr. Robert Hodgson, has been broadened to include participation in all major student assemblies, the Public Speaking Contest, the Spring Concert, and the Black and Orange Review. Plans for the future include more concerts and tours.

A special touring group of the Choraleers was selected from the larger fifty member choir to represent the school at functions within the local and neighboring communities. The group gave a Christmas concert at the Lions Club and were acclaimed for their talent and enthusiasm.

Drill Team Enhances N.J.R.O.T.C. Program

In this first year of the Naval Junior Reserve Officer Training Corps, the Drill Team was conspicuous for its precision. This select group of twenty boys spent many afternoons preparing for the numerous activities in which they participated. Members learned the basics of Close Order Drill, and in striving for perfection, attained the satisfaction that accompanies mastery of complex skills.

Under the leadership of the Naval Science faculty, and the direct leadership of Cadets Robert Mann and George Morris the Drill Team marched in the Veteran's Day Parade and performed at the Thanksgiving Day football game at Winchester. In a year of many highlights, one that will remain memorable was the visit to the cruiser U.S.S. Boston at the Boston Naval Shipyard, a visit that gave the team a view of the modern navy.

Math Team Has Successful Third Year

Since 1968 was a successful year for the Math Team, Woburn High was advanced to a higher division in the Massachusetts Mathematics League. Despite the more intense competition, the ten members of the team did extremely well at their monthly meets. The four seniors, four juniors, and two sophomores were able not only to test their mathematical abilities in competition with nine other schools, but also to socialize with the other students. Meeting after school many times during the week in preparation for the contests gave the members valuable practice which culminated in many individual and team honors.

Focus on World Problems

Formed to provide its members with a better understanding of the world in which we live, the International Relations Club, focuses attention on the problems confronting the many and varied societies that make up the world community.

This year the members of the club attended a day-long seminar at Reading High School which was attended by representatives of over fifty high schools from all over New England. Guest speakers included representatives from the State Department, the Assistant Secretary of State for Latin America, and the assistant to roving American Ambassador Averill Harriman. Pertinent questioning after each presentation aided the members in clarifying their concepts of the problems facing our country.

Quality Through Originality

Ideas of the present and the knowledge of the past inspire creative minds to record their beliefs and ideas of life. The Scribes is a group of such creative people, whose goal is "to write tomorrow's literature today." An organization formed in the fall of 1966, the Scribes succeeded in writing three original, highly-imaginative plays.

After writing these plays, the Scribes selected and rehearsed actors and actresses, constructed scenery and made appropriate costumes for the performances. The plays were characterized by suspense, satire, symbolism, humor, and imagination. The novel approaches to the presentation of these plays, revealed the dedication and the desire for perfection of author, director, advisor, and member.

Theory, Competition Highlight Meetings

Each Monday afternoon, the Woburn High School Bridge Club meets in room 6322 with its instructor, Mr. Matthew McNamara. At these meetings, the members learn the theory of the game as well as actually participating in the competition. By studying the theory of the game, the members learn to reveal the content of their cards to their partner in the preliminary bidding.

As well as having matches among the club members, tournaments with other high schools are part of the program. In the past, the representatives from Woburn have done very well in inter-school competition and are looking forward to further success in the coming school years.

Hi-Teens Aim for Self-Improvement

Fun, fancy, enchantment, excitement, and learning were the goals of the Hi-Teen Fashion Club. All senior girls taking the Home Economics course were invited to join. Throughout the year speakers from the fields of fashion and cosmetics presented programs aimed at guiding each member toward the discipline, improvement, and understanding of herself.

Debating Society Probes Timely Subjects

The debating society strove to teach the principles of argument to interested students through discussion and debate on timely subjects.

In order to win his argument, a student had to master all the facts pertaining to his subject, thus in researching and presenting his subject, he learned not only about argument and debate, but current affairs as well.

Science Club Fosters Private Inquiry

Interested students of science, stimulated by classroom work and private inquiry, gather at meetings of the Science Club to further their quest for knowledge.

The works of especially ambitious and conscientious students are displayed at the massive annual Science Fair. The fair, in addition to encouraging personal inquiry, provides an opportunity for the general public and the student body to familiarize themselves with the scientific pursuits of a large number of students.

Interest Stimulated In Medical Fields

Guided by Mrs. Susan B. Vogel of the Biology Department, the Pre-Med-Biology Club is one of the most popular in the school. The main purpose of the club is to stimulate interest among students in the medical profession and in the various biological fields.

The highlight of this year's activities was a field trip to the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston where the club members viewed open heart surgery. In addition, the students toured the hospital's laboratory area. This trip has become an annual one, much to everyone's enjoyment, since the club's formation in 1965.

Distributive Education is a national program totaling ninety thousand students. The high school has had the program for three years, and has made an impressive showing in the yearly leadership conferences. In 1967 students won three awards for outstanding achievement in various areas of retailing, and Mr. Vincent Rivela, teacher-coordinator for the program, was very gratified by this class's performance at the conference held at the Sheraton-Boston Hotel in March.

Assistance to Library

The Library Aids is a fairly new organization in the school. Its purpose is to speed up the processing of new materials in the school so that new books and materials are available to the faculty as early as possible.

The work is done in the library by the members during study periods. The members paste pockets and book plates in each book. Then each book is stamped to show it belongs to Harlow Library. Then books are covered with plastic jackets. After this the cards for each book are filed. The members also do other clerical jobs around the library.

Active Year for Language Clubs

Students interested in Supplementary classroom instruction in foreign languages are offered various opportunities to develop their linguistic abilities and extend the periphery of the program to broaden their knowledge of a country's culture and heritage. Through a variety of activities the French, German, Russian, and Spanish Clubs the students find time to observe a country's authors, musicians and governments. Field trips, films, and guest speakers enhance the meetings and successful cake sales fill the treasury. The clubs are annually a satisfying experience for all members.

Classroom Procedure Observed by F.T.A. Members

Those students who are interested in teaching as a career are afforded the opportunity to make a more knowledgeable decision through the efforts of the Future Teachers' Club. Junior and Senior members spend an activity period each week observing at the elementary and junior high levels. In many cases they gain actual experience through correcting papers and helping individual students.

The club also had an active social calendar on which the three outstanding dates were the Christmas Party where new members received the club pin, Teacher Recognition Day, where the members showed appreciation of the teachers' efforts with a simple memento, and the Spring Tea at which the newly elected officers for the coming year were announced.

Key Club Promotes Youth Service

The Key Club this year continued its assistance to the school and community under the leadership of Mr. Peter Varoutsos. Primarily a service club, the Key Club, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Woburn, continued in this endeavor by presenting a wide range of excellent guest speakers and a wide variety of informative topics, which include the youth of today, narcotics and the many opportunities in the world of business.

In service to the school and community the Key Club has distributed food and gift baskets to needy families during the holiday season, sponsored a dance for retarded children, sold football programs, checked coats and sold refreshments at school functions and made many donations to the school department, including a film-strip projector to the library.

The G.A.A., through varsity and intramural sports such as flag football, field hockey, basketball, badminton, track, tennis, archery, and softball attempts to promote girl's athletics and social activities and gives recognition to deserving athletes. The very successful year was ended with the annual G.A.A. Banquet at which time awards were given to various worthy girl athletes.

Business Girls Achieve "Esprit de Corps"

In addition to increasing the members' knowledge of business trends and conditions, the Business Education Club performs services for the community and the school, provides a social group for the members, and establishes an "Esprit de Corps" among the senior girls in the Business Department.

Club meetings were held the 3rd Monday of each month, third period, in the Little Theatre where lectures, discussions, and demonstrations by experts in the field of business were presented. In February, personnel specialists from the New England Telephone and Telegraph Company presented a program and film on requirements and application procedures for employment with the company.

One of the most memorable events was a field trip to the Prudential Insurance Center in Boston where members toured the facility, viewing all phases of the company from mail rooms to executive offices, and were instructed by personnel officers on proper application and interview techniques.

Informative, Lively Paper Aids School Unity

To promote school spirit and instill a sense of unity among the student body is one of the most important purposes of the Sentorian. Issues were published before each vacation, with the staff striving to make each issue as current as deadlines would allow.

Once each month, the staff participated in the "Editor's Club," an organization sponsored by the Boston Globe, which met in Boston and familiarized the reporters with outstanding personalities in the field of journalism. After an informative lecture, the members discussed various facets of the profession.

To provide an opportunity to evaluate other high schools' activities and to broaden the staff's knowledge of the surrounding areas, the Sentorian participated in an exchange program, which involved trading newspapers with other schools.

New Challenges Met By the Nomad

For the past several years, Woburn High School has had a literary magazine of great quality. This school magazine, the Nomad, uses only material written by students of the school. The Literary Staff selects the best short stories, essays, and poems from those submitted by members of each class. The magazine also features art essays drawn by members of the Art Staff. The magazine published two issues and celebrated another successful year.

Talent and Spirit Prove Worthy of Merit

Again this year, under the direction of Mr. Edson Kimball, Woburn High's band and orchestra made excellent presentations at many school activities. Not only did the band encourage our football team by its performances at the games and rallies, but also it reflected upon Woburn High's competence by its exhibitions in local parades. The orchestra made many meritable renditions of musical composition throughout the year—the Christmas Concert, the Senior Play, Prize Speaking Contest, and numerous assemblies.

Eleven colorful and spirited female members of the Senior High filled the crowd and teams with enthusiasm at our inter-scholastic competitions. The cheerleaders never lost their pep and inspiration—not even during the down-pour at the Thanksgiving Day game. Accompanying the band and cheerleaders in the support of our football squad were the Majorettes, Color Guard, and Emblem Bearers, all demonstrating Woburn High's precision and spirit on the field.

Contemporary Design for '69 INNITOU

Many hours of selecting pictures, planning layouts, and writing articles determine the worth of this yearbook. The 1969 INNITOU staff worked diligently toward one goal: to relive memories of high school years.

The pictures in this book depict emotions of joy, participation, and bewilderment. The layouts represent the contemporary style of a dominant photograph. And the articles record the adventures of each social activity, the disappointment of the teams' losses, the joy of their victories, and the major events of each organization.

An individual will wish to recall the past, and may seek something tangible to refresh his memories; the 1969 INNITOU serves as this memento, through which a person can relive the events and highlights of his high school years.

Winning Tradition Returns

The 1968 football season was one that will be long remembered. not only did the team display athletic prowess but showed great teamwork and cooperation.

Under new Coach Len Hill the season looked promising but Woburn succumbed to traditional powers Newburyport and Swampscott.

From that point on, however, the team jelled with smooth teamwork and grim determination. After finally evening the record at 4-4 Woburn faced the awesome, undefeated Middlesex champion, Winchester. This 20-14 upset was the crowning achievement of a winning season and seemed to be the beginning of many superior football autumns at Woburn High School.

Soccer Scores Successful First

Under Coach Bob DeLuca, the soccer team, in its inaugural season, represented Woburn High with fine play and outstanding sportsmanship. To the amazement of all except team members and Coach DeLuca, the team defeated its first four opponents, Wilmington, Melrose, and Watertown twice, gathering many followers. Lexington, state Soccer Champions of 1967, played the Woburn booters to a 0-0 tie in their next game.

Senior Gene Boyles, goalie, proved to be the defensive standout, recording 4 shutouts in 9 games. The offensive muscle of seniors Jerry Connors, Jerry Christoforo, Bill McKenna, and Dave McGrath aided team victories while Lenny Olson showed defensive prowess at the fullback post.

Plagued by injuries the last half of the season, offensive play slowed and the team ended its season with a promising 4-4-1 record. True varsity soccer is here to stay at Woburn High.

Hoopster's Play Outweighs Losses

The varsity Basketball team, hampered by injuries to key players throughout the season faced with the strongest overall competition in the Northeastern Conference in recent years, bowed out of the conference with an impressive showing in all contests, although not evident in the won-loss column.

Playing their last season, seniors Paul Doherty, Dave Moore, Steve Lang, Jim Lord, Jim Martin, John Given, and Rick Crosby provided leadership and hustle throughout the winter circuit.

With the advent of the Tanners' entry into the Middlesex League next season, hopes are high on Coach Skeffington's juniors who are getting the seasoning expected and throughout the season displayed moments of talent which it is hoped will carry over into the highly-respected Middlesex League. Juniors Dennis Galante, Bob Bergstrom, Jeff Banks, Ed Shankle, Bob Lang, Bill Nolan, and Sophomore Rich Black will be the nucleus of next year's squad.

Pucksters Slash Strong Efforts

Silhouetted against the cold and foreboding winter sky, the 1968-1969 version of the Hockey Team rose Phoenix like from the ashes of three early season defeats to wing its way toward contention for a berth in the annual state schoolboy hockey tournament.

Led by co-captains Joe Marashio and Steve Bevins and backed by veterans Doug Lentz, Jimmy Lynch, Jim Murphy, Dennis Carpenter, Jim Doucette and John Arena, and with Frank Wheaton in the goal, the Tannerpucksters slashing their way across the arena ice this season were the most talented and spirited edition to represent the Black and Orange since the tournament teams of 1964-1965.

Champions Battle New Foes

With eleven returning lettermen from a squad that won the Northeastern Conference and Class B Championships in 1968, the team's inaugural season in the Middlesex League was an auspicious one.

Veterans saturated the lineup: George DeDonato, Catcher; Rick Crosby, 1.B.; Bobby Murphy, 2.B.; Dennis Galante, S.S.; Doug Lentz, 3.B.; Bobby Lang, Jimmy Lynch, and Dave Greenwood in the Out Field, and Steve Bevins and Steve Lang, Pitchers.

Aiming high, the Tanners' goals for the year were to be champions of the Middlesex League their first year in the league, and to gain a berth in the Class "A" Tournament. Their record this season indicates that maturity, team hustle, and high aspirations would seem to be vital components of a winning season.

The loneliness of the long distance runner.

Track — The Victors

In Woburn Sports of 1968-1969, the track teams continued to be the brightest points in an otherwise average year. Cross-Country—finishing out their Northeastern Conference competition, produced a fine record of 6 wins and 3 defeats—a third place finish.

Indoor Track—first of all Woburn sports to appear in Regular Middlesex League competition shocked the senior circuit with a stunning 7-3 record, finishing third to only undefeated Melrose and once defeated Lexington. The team was rated tenth out of seventy-seven teams in the state by B.A.A. standards. Records fell. John Gatlin and Steve Hogan posted new time records in the 600 and 300 yard runs respectively.

Outdoor track—the team once again was a strong contender for the championship.

Golfers Assault New Terrain

Taking full advantages of an early spring thaw, Coach Fedele's linemen were off to a fine start in their first year of competition in the all-powerful Middlesex League. Despite the strongness of new courses and the changes in the format of match play, peculiar only to the Middlesex League, the team showed tremendous poise and gave many fine displays of pressure golf.

Coach Fedele attributed the team's performance to the extended practice time available to squad members at the Woburn Country Club and to the experience and leadership shown by the team's three three-year veterans Seniors Bob MacDonald, Paul Greene and Bob Murphy who combined with such two-year vets as teammates John McDonough, Leo Koshabjian, Mark Ludwig and Steve Miscowski to help the new members adjust to the pressures of match play.

Winning Ways Continue

Sparked by the scoring ability of Mal Keeley, Paula Mullen, Terry Green, Ann Higgins, and Judy Connolly the Field Hockey team again accrued an enviable record.

A highly successful season was the reward for the many long hours of practice during autumn months.

Since victory margins were substantial Coach Wegener was able to use much reserve talent and thus insure a nucleus of players with varsity experience for next year's squad.

The JVs in Action!

The Tannerettes experienced a disappointing season this year in spite of the determination and enthusiasm of Capt. Linda Spencer and team members Madeline Farrell, Noreen Freil, Kristy Kolodko, Loretta Roderrick, Susan Triden, and Kathy O'Brien. Such losses, however should come as no surprise to the loyal supporters of the basketball team. It was apparent at the beginning of the season that the Tannerettes were lacking depth, one of the essential ingredients of a winning team. Nevertheless, these players are to be congratulated for their fine effort and sportsmanship.

Competitive Practice Proves Beneficial

Enthusiasm, skill and hours of practice have provided Woburn High School with a talented team. Lorraine Roach and second and third single stars Janet Hakenson and Joanne Driscoll gave Woburn tennis fans much to cheer about throughout the season. This year as well as the last couple of years the players improved their style by participating in the "Ladder Tournament" a device whereby each player was allowed to challenge another top rung player. This method of competitive practice has proven beneficial to the success of the team.

Close Contests in Softball

Early April marked the beginning of strenuous practice sessions for the members of the Girl's softball team. A month of calisthenics proved beneficial to the girls both physically and mentally.

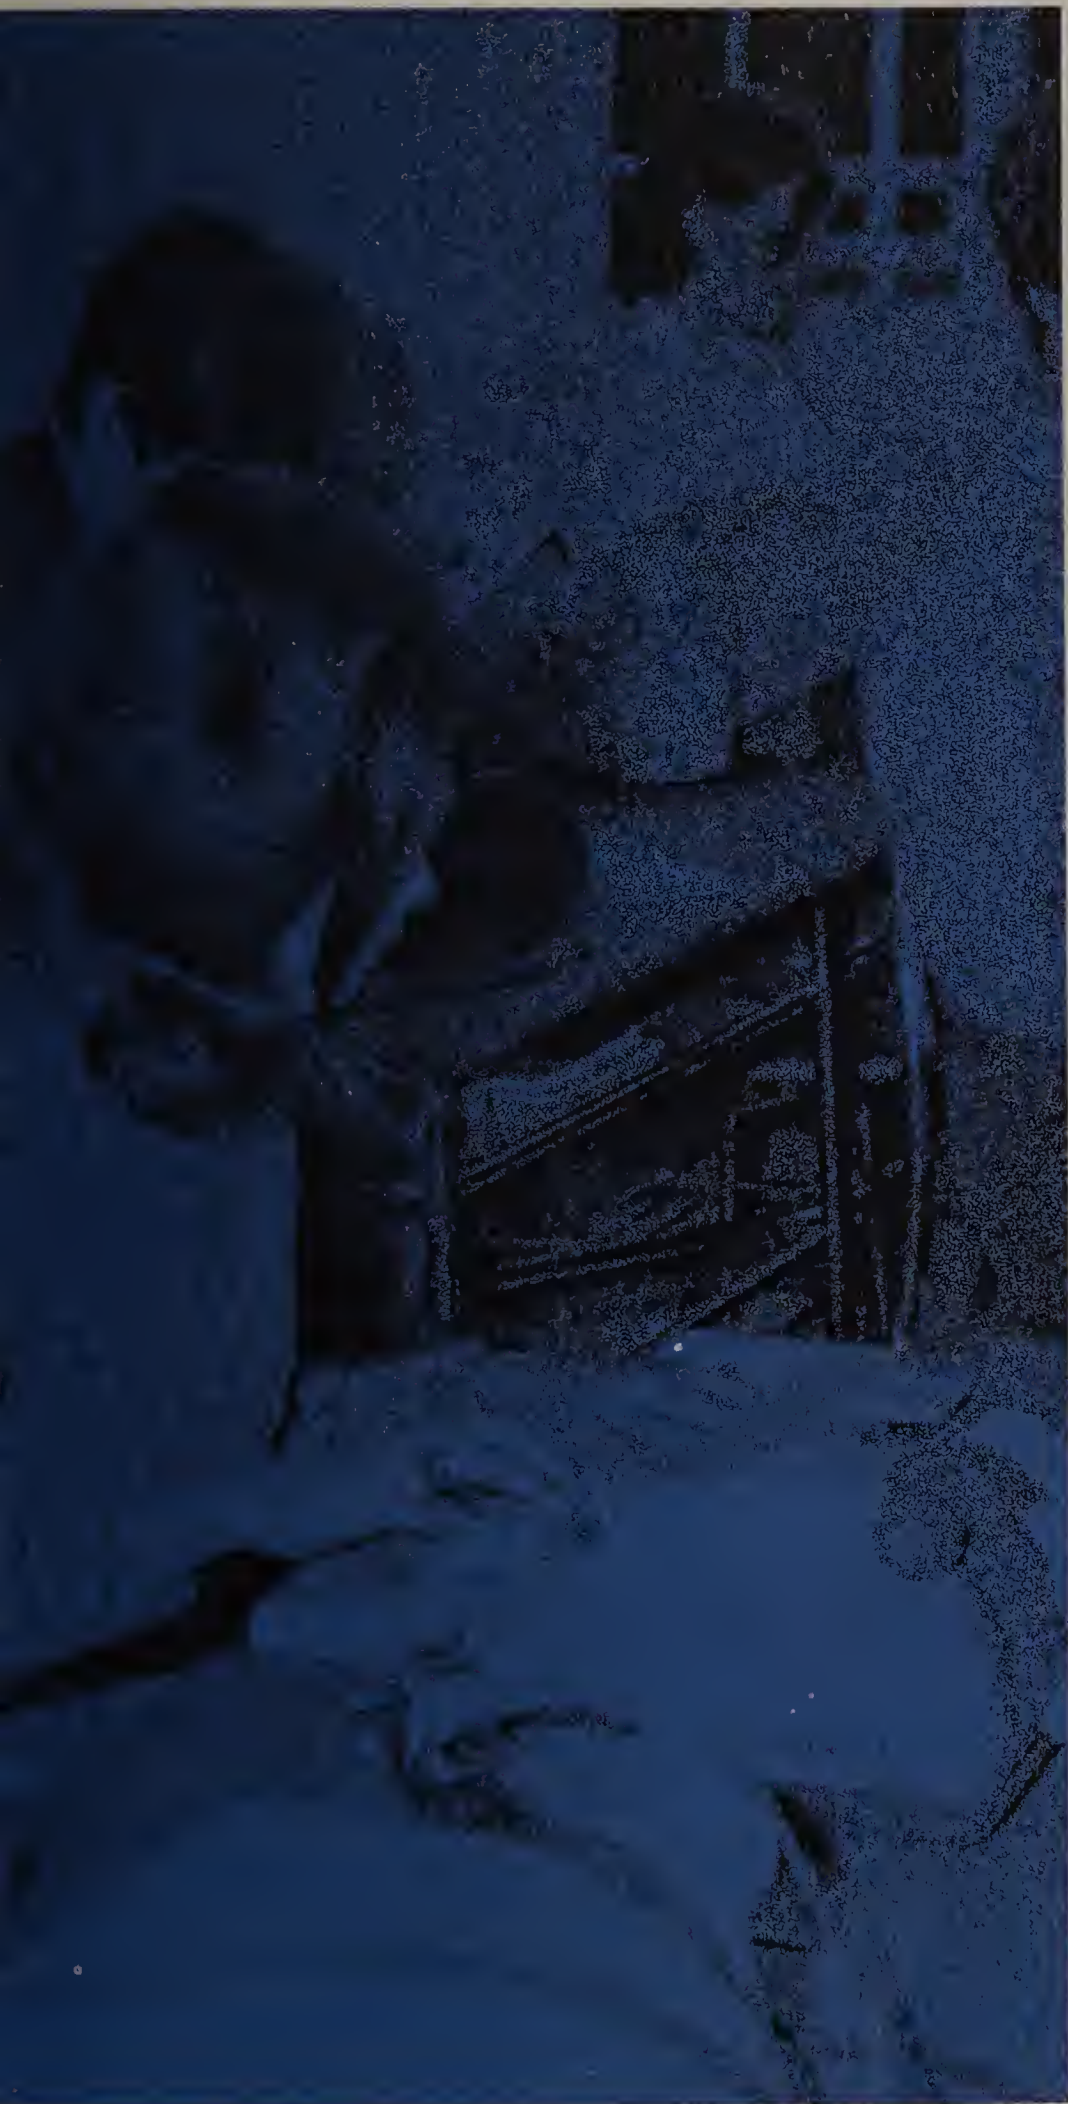

The magnificent team spirit provided the initial spark necessary for a good performance both at the plate and on the field.

Budding underclassmen are sure to develop a promising team for the coming years, despite the loss of many retiring seniors.

To give distinction to the members of the Senior Class who possess the qualities of Scholarship, Leadership, Character, and Service is the purpose of the National Honor Society. The goal of the Honor Society is to provide not only recognition of past deeds, but also to stimulate incentive to further Scholastic accomplishment, to give Service to the community, and to set an example of Leadership and Character.

The members of the National Honor Society should not be viewed as individuals but as a complete body striving for advancement. They are the personification of the ideal qualities which compose their generation. The manifestation of these qualities of Scholarship, Leadership, Character, and Service help to establish a better society.
